Texas as a Republic (1911) Buckley B. Paddock

Buckley B. Paddock, 1844-1922, was born in Ohio and spent his boyhood among the trappers of Northwest, before entering the Confederate army at age 16. After the war he became a lawyer in Mississippi before moving to Fort Worth in 1873. He worked in banking and promoted the Fort Worth and Rio Grande Railroad before becoming mayor in 1892.

He writes:

"Introductory to the review of Central and Western Texas as a distinct portion of the state, is a Brief History of Texas, which, while being a complete and new version of narrative history, has been written primarily as a proper setting for the local history.

A large amount of material has been published which is chiefly interesting as local history. Without burdening the general narrative, care has been taken to preserve as much as possible of the history of towns, communities and institutions, the result being a work of general information upon the country described."

This book originally published in 1911 has been reformatted for the Kindle and has been reformatted for the Kindle and may contain an occasional defect from the original publication or from the reformatting.
